Prospect Books was founded in 1979 by Alan and Jane Davidson, at the same time as they initiated the food studies journal Petits Propos Culinaires (PPC), now in its ninety-fifth issue. Prospect Books was run by Tom Jaine since 1993., and is now run by Catheryn Kilgarrieff, since 2014. Alan and Jane's first publication was Sri Owen's Indonesian Food and Cookery, their second a facsimile of Richard Bradley's Country Housewife and Lady's Director of 1736. Over the intervening years we have published books of and about the history of food and books for the modern cook which either illuminate the life and culture of other peoples or explore unfamiliar and interesting areas of cooking..

Our website has full details on all our titles and other information besides. If there is anything you wish to investigate further, or any aspect of Prospect Books that you would like to explore, do not hesitate to get in touch.
